

Word of the Week:

The image is a composite of two parts. On the left is a cartoon illustration of a rabbit character, resembling Bugs Bunny, wearing a tuxedo and holding an Oscar statuette. He is on a stage with spotlights. Below the illustration, the word "ecstatic" is written in large black letters. Underneath it, in smaller red and black text, is "adj. blissful or thrilled", "how you would feel if you won an award", and "mrswordsmith.com". On the right is a word card for "ecstatic". At the top right, it says "adj." and "blissful or thrilled how you would feel if you won an award". Below that is a circle labeled "SYNONYMS" containing "blissful", "thrilled", and "delighted". To the left of the central red circle labeled "ecstatic" is a quote: "Kensuke was ecstatic in his delight at my painting, and lavish in his praise." followed by "Kensuke's Kingdom by Michael Morpurgo". Below the quote is a box labeled "tell a story" containing the sentence "Arnie was too ecstatic to make a speech. Instead, he...". To the left of the central circle is a vertical label "word pairs" with a box containing "ecstatic joy", "ecstatic crowd", and "ecstatic celebration". At the bottom right of the card is a small version of the rabbit cartoon. At the bottom left of the card, it says "Used in 4.9% of stories".

Can you write two sentences where this word is being used in different ways

Sentence 1:

Sentence 2: